

Editorial

In this edition, Acta Scientiae brings eight scientific articles in Sciences Teaching and Mathematics Education.

We are pleased to inform that all papers published in Acta Scientiae from the beginning of 2018 until now are already indexed in the bibliographic database Scopus, one of the most important ones in the world!

We remind you that, from 2019 on, Acta Scientiae will be published in English and, therefore, all articles that are submitted in another language, if accepted, should send an English version to be published jointly. In addition, Acta Scientiae began to give priority to publishing works resulting from research in international partnership.

Again, we ask our authors to pay strict attention to the Guidelines for authors, available on the Acta Scientiae website.

Acta Scientiae once more thanks all those responsible for the work developed and materialized in this edition, being always open to criticism, suggestions and comments, as well as new submissions of research articles in the area of Sciences Teaching and Mathematics Education.
